EASY BEDS IN THE ARMY.

Lessons in Diplomacy Given by Private Sevenpot.

IT WAS Monday, September 11, 1899, when the Red Cross transport City of Norfolk was three days out from Honolulu, on her voyage to Manila. She carried 650 recruits for Uncle Sam's regiments in the Philippines. Of these, about 400 were volunteers, 100 men and women, the volunteers a year ago and probably 50 were old-time regulars, the men scattered about the decks in all sorts of lounging attitudes. The monotony of the voyage was beginning to tell on the new men, most of whom could not speak English, and there was a growing disposition to grumble at trifles, and a tendency towards slovenliness in dress and lack of personal cleanliness. On the other hand, the volunteers were the best of their class, and were the most cheerful element on board. There was a large novel reading contingent among them, the members of which were to be found squatting on their haunches in corners of the hull, or lying on deck, with a good many drowsy. Back at the Presidio the Red Cross people had given each man a handy little housewife containing needles, thread and buttons. The button hole was soon service to relieve the tedium of the long voyage. The volunteers, who were shooting craps and playing poker for them as much ardor as if each button represented a silver dollar. There were numerous amateur violinists, and some novel readers and card players a number of good singers, and these gathered on the forecastle, where they sang half the day and evening through. The songs ran the gamut from the sentimental to the rugged. One of the latter was "Where Is My Wandering Baby To-Night," and the next "That Brooked Petticoat My Maggie Ware." Then a singer with a talent for improvisation would come in with a made-up song about the ship, and another about the men on the chorus and givefully roar.

And then some one who had been tutored by an old service man would start the old-time wail of the First-century Indian fighters:

"Whoa, whoa, whoa,
Worlly dry am I;
Damm the day
I am."

And joined the cavalry.

A class apart and distinct from the rest were the ex-volunteers, who was made up of the old soldiers aboard. They were scattered here and there in pairs or groups of three or four. As a rule, they had as little to do as many of the men. They were cheerfully different from the others, however, in that they always buy a fast we've-got-three-years-to-do-it sort of way with some trivial task. In this respect they resembled the ship's crew, who were always making or unmaking ropes or painting or scraping paint, and more than they did the younger sailors.

In one group an old soldier was noseing his mess pan with sand that he must have brought all the way from San Francisco, and was wearing a single button, a third was polishing the base on his cartridge belt, and a grizzled-bearded old veteran was trimming his whiskers. The old soldier with the mess pan would peek away at a faint speech that in the distance he could hear, and the young recruit would answer with a word. A moment later another recruit stopped and asked Sevenpot if he wanted a mate companion for a while. Sevenpot, who was a carpenter, said "No, thanks." Sevenpot and his friend, the ex-volunteer, were seated on the forecastle deck with their backs against the companion.

"Sevenpot," said he, "I'm glad to see you. Come on have a drink there. We're on the study side or Army street, on the right side of the ship. I'm a carpenter. I'm responsible for the main company, because we do the boats all the time now. Sevenpot never finished his sentence. The trial was on from Tuesday to Thursday. There is nothing left which the court can do but discharge the prisoner and dismiss the case. To hold the prisoner for trial on Wednesday, September 13, 1899, was an unusual appointment. I recollect that the ship's captain, to testify as to the correct date."

FRIDAY, JAN. 12, 1900.

A slippery morning indeed! The efforts of expression and stable-keepers to get horses to the blacksmiths to be sharpened would have been ludicrous if pity for the poor animals who were slipping and falling on all sides did not prevent.

Mr. Louis A. Cook in a letter in this issue of the Gazette recommends a town club of men interested in the welfare of the town. The idea is good and ought to be favored by many. We hope that so many will endorse the idea immediately that our next issue we can announce an early meeting for organization.

The Monday Club advocates the passing of the curfew law in Weymouth, and is to ask for an article in the warrant to that effect. The move will undoubtedly meet with favor as the universal testimony of all towns and cities that have this law is that it is a good thing and tends to the better conduct and moral growth of the young. It is claimed that it does not increase the expense of police officers.

The General Court will be asked at this session to confirm the lease, or, if properly speaking, the sale of the Boston and Albany Railroad to the New York Central. These two great corporations have gotten together and arranged the deal on a basis eminently satisfactory to their stockholders, no doubt, but it is a question if the interests of the Massachusetts public have yet been given a full consideration in the matter. In Boston and Albany we have a valuable franchise that the Central can afford to guarantee 8 percent, and a bonus besides, for a long future in securing its control why would it not be a good thing for the state to exercise its undoubted right to take this property for the benefit of the public? That this deal will work to the injury of the Fitchburg in which the state has an important investment is almost certain. We hope a full light will be turned on this deal and that the legislature will be slow to ratify it.

A. W. B.

In area Massachusetts is a small part of the territory of the United States but in philanthropy and charity it occupies a large place. Of the $50,000 contributed to the Boston fund up to last Monday, more than $7,000 was from the old Bay State.

By some strange acts of Congress in making special laws and promotions for naval officers who have won distinction during the past few years, Capt. Clark of the dragon is now two numbers lower than he would have been had there been no war with Spain. Secretary Long has called the attention of Congress to this and some other matters of favoritism and it is to be hoped that justice will be done in the case of Capt. Clark whose heroism has no parallel.

The latest park enterprise is to take Mt. Tom as a reservation. It is about time to call a halt as paying $1,000 an acre for $10 woodland and worthless salt marshes.

To what and where are we drifting? It is estimated that within the city limits of Boston and Lynn there were more people congregated on the ice ponds than were gathered within the churches.

It was a good suggestion to the Park Commissioners, in the inaugural of Gov. Crane, that they proceed to make the arrangement with the Bostonians that their park in the several reservations, Mt. Tom, knows yet what Weymouth will be assessed for the Nantasket Beach reservation, and the same thing is true of other places. When the assessments begin to be made, people will not be so anxious to petition for parks. We have before us the names of over 900 people who signed the petition for the Nantasket Beach reservation and we find but few people who know of thought that Weymouth would be assessed.

Speaker Myers has had no easy task in placing 240 members, old and new, in position on the several committees but the task of the installation of the commissioners will have settled down to business. From this district Mr. Whelan will be connected with his old work, Bank and Banking, while the new man, Mr. Hunt, will have a double duty, being on Towns and Insurance.

The several state commissioners are beginning to get in their reports and the cattle commission has broken the record by reducing mites, bacteria, tuberculosis and other ills and has on hand some $25,000 of an appropriation of $75,000.

The senior United States senator from Mass., Hon. George F. Hoar, is proving himself a man of remarkable vigor for one who has passed four score years. It remains however to see whether he is on the winning or popular side of the ever-pending question.

ENTERPRISE AT THE POST OFFICE AT WEMYOUTH,
MASS., AS BROADMAYER MATTER.

FRIDAY, JAN. 19, 1900.

In 1851 the committee recommended to the town of Weymouth "That four high schools be established in Town to be in charge of male teachers, and that each school be provided with books worth at least $1000 to be appropriated for the support of each school, that $2,700 be appropriated for support of primary schools." The recommendation provided that not more than $600 be raised for all the schools of the town, and said "there will be about $5 for each child between five and fifteen." * * * By appropriating $5,000 for support of schools Weymouth will rank the thirteenth town in the state, while it is third in population and seventh in wealth." There has been a great advance in educational spirit since then.

It is becoming evident that the next great political campaign will have for one of its most prominent issues, if not the most prominent, the question of trusts. John D. Rockefeller, the Standard Oil magnate, is outspoken in behalf of trusts and monopolies. The people do not know something of the work of individual enterprises on which this great monopoly has been reared, it seems that such companies are not blessings at least. A New York trade paper has the following on trusts which seems from the right standpoint:

"The suppression of competition is not in the public welfare, but it is the first thing that comes to mind. The administration of the small operators is a decided disadvantage to the community. If the small operator cannot compete in the market, he must go out of business. His termination must be accepted as one of the drawbacks of a movement, as one of the whole one of progress. But we feel that the time has come to acquire the charge of breaking the domination of small operators either by securing exclusive advantages with franchises or by compelling him to sell his goods at such cost till the man of short capital is driven out and the combination of large capital is left free to do its bidding in ways in accordance with the public interest methods."

Mr. Rockefeler admits that one of the disadvantages of the combination is its necessary increase in the price of supplies. We believe that no trust has been organized which has not endeavored to fix greater and higher prices. The trust, however, does everything that it can to accomplish its ends. The decline of prices, then, is not the work of the trust; it is the work of the same forces which succeeded in preventing it. But that part of the cost which they are chiefly interested in they have often succeeded in reducing. The cost of raw materials and finished products have been shown to have increased under the manipulation of the trusts. Companies which they could not control have fixed lower prices of their products, but they have succeeded in forcing down still further the prices of the materials they buy. To the extent that they have succeeded in dominated the smaller operators and destroyed competition, the force behind all our industrial progress, they have been a detriment to the community."

The opposition to the Fitchburg lease is growing rapidly, and is taking shape in strong expressions of disapproval by the people, not only on the line of the road but throughout the state.

The war in the Transvaal is assuming terribly large dimensions for a small open and small and weak nation." The Boers are in deepest earnest and are fighting for the very life of their country. It is a most unfortunate war for England and for the whole civilized world. These jingo politicians of all nations need suppressing.

There are ten thousand microbes on each dollar bill that has circulated for one year. Still there are men who insist on carrying this deadly menace around with them instead of sending them to us in payment for subscription due. Come up, friends, we'll risk the microbes—"Campaign Time."

There are others—we take the risk on microbes, bacteria, tuberculosis and the entire combination.

Arizona and New Mexico are still clamoring for sisterhood in the great constellation of states. Neither of them has the population of the city of Boston and yet it means four more senators.

It may be a little late to review the fair of the Weymouth Agricultural and Industrial Society of last fall, but the year book of the society just has an interesting number and quite encouraging to Weymouth as an agricultural and industrial center. A review of the book shows that over 1,200 prizes were awarded and nearly 400 of those were for the product of the field and orchard and nearly 300 more for live stock of various kinds. We are believers in the agriculture of Weymouth and a good medium through which to work is the Agricultural society.

Senator Hanna has the Republican convention, platform and nomination up his sleeve for the coming convention and as Mr. Bryan is similarly equipped for the Democratic meeting there seems to be but little for the people to do but attend to the business.

Tuesday was a special day for Speaker Myers. The question being whether the house would stand to him, he began a general slaughter. The resolution of Mr. Miller of Worcester to break up the committee on railroads had little or no support and Mr. Salter of Lynn learned that it was not an easy matter to distract the speaker. The only effect of such tactics will be to prolong the session and it does not require much of a prophet to see the house in session in buying time.

The 194 anniversary of the birth of Franklin (he was born but one Franklin) occurred on Wednesday and if the departed are permitted to look on and listen to the activities of life he must have been pleased at the development along his chosen lines.

FELL ON THE ICE.
Russell Frost Meets With Serious Accident.

Russell Frost, a teamster in the employ of J. B. Rhines & Co., met with a serious accident Monday. Mr. Frost was carrying on his shoulder a heavy piece of joist, when he slipped and fell on the ice, the piece of joist striking him on the head, and inflicting several ugly wounds. Dr. Virgin and Dr. Bullock attended him.

SUSTAINED FATAL INJURIES. Joseph Tirrell Struck by Freight Train.

Passes Away at Massachusetts General Hospital—Was Well Known Citizen of Weymouth.

Joseph Tirrell, a well-known citizen of this town, passed away at the Massachusetts General Hospital at an early hour Thursday morning, death resulting from injuries sustained in an accident Saturday last.

For the past few weeks, Mr. Tirrell had been employed by the N. Y. N. H. & H. Co., as night gate-man at the Quincy Avenue crossing, and it was while performing the duties attending that position that he was injured. The accident occurred at the time when the late freight was shifting cars in the vicinity of this crossing, and Mr. Tirrell was struck in the breast and head by a heavy iron joist which had been picked up in an unconscious condition, suffering severe hemorrhage and a general, social, though somewhat retiring disposition, has endeared him to a large circle of friends who will miss him in any social gathering.

The blacksmith who maintained his home was a sailor and the sound of the waves almost lost on Fort Sumpter had not died away when he was in his uniform and on his way to the front. His enlistment in Co. 14, 4th Regt., during April 16, 1861 was probably one of the earliest enlistments from Weymouth. This enlistment being under the three months call he was mustered out on July 22, of the same year but his patriotic blood was up and again in October of the same year he enlisted for three years or the war as corporal in Co. A, 3rd Regt., and was promoted to sergeant and then to corporal and finally to master sergeant in the spring of '62 when he was honorably discharged from the service.

On returning home he resumed his old trade, that of a shoe worker, and settled down to a quiet citizenship and domestic life marrying Mary Ann, daughter of Naaman Whiting on Aug. 10, 1863. Miss Holmes is a reader of high note, and comes highly recommended. Mr. Wulf Fries has appeared before Weymouth audiences upon previous occasions and his name on the programme is almost a sign of success.

COUNTY FAIR.
The event of the week will be the men's ball to be held in Music Hall, East Weymouth, this Friday evening. The management has spent neither labor nor expense in efforts to make the affair a success, and a good time is guaranteed. Music for the dancing will be furnished by the Salem Cadet Band, James Missel, leader, and the banquet will be prepared by Westover & Sons.

High School Notes.

Miss Elizabeth Lane of the junior class, is suffering with a dangerous affection of the eyes, has been compelled to give up all hope of returning to school this year. She will attempt to join her class in September, by studying as her illness will permit.

Miss Grace Neal, formerly a member of the class of 1900, visited the school last Tuesday.

The debate last Friday was exceptionally interesting. The debaters did very well indeed, no papers being used by the boys, who are preparing for the inter-class debate which is to take place in a few weeks. The question was "Has the penny postage stamp been adopted by the United States Government." Attorneys on both sides had failed, it is true enough; it is not less true that this has been in spite of the efforts of the trustee, Prudential, who has increased the postage stamp.

The suppression of competition is not in the public welfare, but it is the first thing that comes to mind. The administration of the small operators is a decided disadvantage to the community. If the small operator cannot compete in the market, he must go out of business.

Mr. Rockefeler admits that one of the disadvantages of the combination is its necessary increase in the price of supplies.

Miss Holmes, Senior vs. Sophomores.

A very exciting game of basket ball was played between the girls' teams of the senior and sophomore classes last Tuesday afternoon. The girls have been practising a great deal and have become more skillful players than the boys. The personnel of the game was:

Seniors.

Miss Belle... Sophomores.

Miss Louise... Mrs. ...

Miss Nolan... C. ...

Miss Mahoney... M. ...

Miss McCarthy... T. ...

Score: Seniors, 26; Sophomores, 22.

Complimentary Resolutions.

The following resolutions by the Weymouth Teachers' Association will be presented to the members of the school committee at their meeting on Friday evening:

Whereas, our esteemed superintendent, Mr. L. M. Norcross, has announced to us his purpose to sever his official relation with the Weymouth Teachers' Association, be it resolved:

That while we rejoice at his decision, we deeply regret the loss which his retirement will entail.

Resolved, That we recognize in him a man high in his ideals, zealous for the cause of education, and a man of unusual tact and resource in counsel, firm and courageous in purpose, and of unquestioned justice and integrity.

Resolved, That we extend to him for his guidance and helpfulness the thanks of this association and of its members individually and are hereby extended to him for his guidance and helpfulness.

Resolved, That we are sorry to lose him and are hereby extended to him for his guidance and helpfulness.

FRIDAY, JAN. 26, 1900.

Exciting arguments over the rights and wrongs of the Transvaal war are heard on every hand.

A circular has been sent out to the publishers of the country with the following preamble:

TO OUR MEMBERS IN CONGRESS.

The paper trust has advanced the price of paper from 40 to 75 per cent., creating a great hardship for publishers. Thousands of papers all over the country are barely earning a living and this robbery by the trust should be stopped.

Your vote to print white paper and wood pulp on the free list will be appreciated. We believe it will stop this paper trust. This trust helps no one but the paper trust.

It is desired that every publisher shall address his congressman such a letter.

"Take the tariff off of a ton of paper, protect our forests by admitting wood pulp free, protect the publishers and bust the trust." So says The Sun.

We are the speakers of trusts, those that directly rule the people more than perhaps any other, and the steel and wire trust. All classes of people build houses and repair old houses. Of the cost of a new house or of the repairs on old, nails, screws and steel and iron work of all kinds consume large items of the expense. Look at what the trust policy has done for the people in this respect! The American Steel and Wire Co. was organized in January 1899, with $60,000,000 capital, of which more than half is probably water, or there were no profits in the original capital invested. This trust has a monopoly of the nail and wire business of the country. During this year the prices of nails and all kinds of wire have doubled. The price, wholesale, for nails in Dec., 1899, was $3.55, an increase of $2.15 or nearly 200 per cent. It is declared also that these same nails that are sold on a basis of $3.55 per kg at home are being exported to Europeans on a basis of $2.14 per kg. 70,000,000 pounds were reported in 1899. Who can defend the trusts? Will they sacrifice the people in their occasional rate of 10 per cent in wages?

The writer has the pleasure of being able to report that the Weymouth Gazette, that after some correspondence he yesterday received from Mr. Amos W. Stetson that gentleman's check for $2500 as a donation to the Tufts Library, and that last evening he had the happiness of handing this cheque with accompanying letter from Mr. Stetson, to Mr. Frank H. Mason, treasurer of the library, and of witnessing the broad smile of surprise and pleasure which spread over his genial countenance as the good news was received. The details and conditions of the munificent gift, the first of importance that our library has ever received, will be found in another column.

NOBLE GIFT

Of $2500 to Tufts Library by Mr. Amos W. Stetson,

In Memory of His Beloved Mother,
Susannah Hunt Stetson.

Mr. Amos W. Stetson presents to the town of Weymouth for its Tufts Library the sum of $2,500 with the following letter:

Boston, Jan. 24, 1900.

To the Trustees of Tufts Library of Weymouth, Mass. i.

In memory of my beloved mother, who was born in Weymouth, I propose to establish a small fund to be called the "Susannah Hunt Stetson Fund," the income of which is to be expended in the purchase of books for said library. Incluced is my cheque for twenty-five hundred dollars for said library, the same to be invested in the note or bond of said town of Weymouth, Mass., for said amount, at a rate of interest not less than four per cent, per annum; and whenever said town shall fail to pay to the trustees of said library said interest for one year, then the principal or said fund shall revert to my heirs-at-law.

Mr. Amos W. Stetson.

That Mr. Stetson's noble gift will be gratefully accepted by the town, and that interest of at least 4 per cent, will be guaranteed by a proper note or bond, is not to be doubted. The income will probably be devoted to the purchase of a class of more expensive books than the Library might otherwise feel able to buy. A suitable plate or inscription will be placed in each book so added, thus honoring the memory of Mr. Stetson's mother and also bringing constantly to the mind of each reader the generosity of the donor, Mr. Amos W. Stetson.

Susannah Hunt Stetson was born in Weymouth, Aug. 20, 1803, and was the daughter of Ebenezer and Susannah Hunt. She was married to the late Caleb Stetson in 1822.

Complimentary to T. M. Norcross.

The large hall of the High school building was dedicated last Friday evening at 7 o'clock. A speech was given to Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Norcross, by the Weymouth Teachers' Association.

A large corps of ushers were ready to receive the people as they arrived from the different parts of the town and to present them to Mr. and Mrs. Norcross, who were assisted in receiving by Miss Washburn of the Hunt school and Mr. W. S. Sayward of the Franklin school. During the reception an orchestra composed of Arthur M. Raymond, Stewart Mason and Fred Goodnow furnished delightful music.

The songs of Dr. Joseph Chase, Miss Ella Clark and Mr. P. J. Fennell added much occasion.

Miss Maggy of the High school in behalf of the association, with well chosen words in a very graceful manner presented a bouquet of violets to Mrs. T. M. Norcross. In response to the address of the teachers and of a large majority of the citizens of the town and of the pleasure he had had in his work here.

A prettily decorated table was presided over by Miss Curtis, who served lemonade and wafers.

Our new kitchen furnishing department was inaugurated less than five months ago, yet in this short time it has become one of the busiest and most popular stores in existence.

Ladies come here every day and exclaim, "What a splendid variety!" "What wonderfully low prices," "Will never go to Boston again for our kitchen supplies." Here we have everything you can think of or can need.

Enamel Ware, Tin Ware, Wooden Ware, Crockery, Glass Ware, etc. etc. Prices guaranteed at least 10 per cent. lower than those of Boston Department Stores. Courteous Clerks to show you around.

The entire upper floor of Trelf's building devoted to kitchen furnishing supplies exclusively.

Main store, street floor, loaded with goods, nothing over 10 cents. Items strictly Cash.

Aluminum Oil Heaters.

NO TROUBLE, NO DIRT, NO SMOKE.

WHAT a boon to woman and a comfort to man. The new Aluminum Heaters this season are the acme of perfection, both in beauty of construction and in economy of heat. They are safe, easily regulated and can be moved from room to room. A trial will convince any one of their utility.
